5 Reasons You Should Move to Saudi Arabia

Sourced from <https://www.bankerinthefun.com>

An Easy Transition To A Better Life

Most people living back home have a real hard time leaving their jobs. Some of these fears are ingrained in the perception they're "leaving a secure job" behind, even if they're in a rut, or sacrificing too much to leave their comfort zone. When you consider the reasons why you should move to Saudi Arabia, this is a no-brainer. You are actually gaining more security by moving to there. You can get a far better job there. I landed a job I could only dream of getting in the US. You can also stay in touch with friends and family using the kingdom's A+ internet service. This is an easy transition into a better life.

You'll Be Well-Traveled

Anyone who's lived in that part of the world has traveled extensively. They have visited places in Africa, Asia, and Europe. Saudi Arabia is so well-located you can get to France in a few hours. You'll add a wonderful world of colors to your life and gain a heck of a lot more culture there than you would staying entombed in your comfort zone. People and businesses across the world will appreciate your new-found wisdom.

You'll Make New Friends

Saudis are a very friendly people, so are all the expats living there. One of the reasons you should move to Saudi Arabia are the friends you'll be making. Many a times, these new friends will be well-connected. You'll find that numerous opportunities arise, whether they be career or social opportunities. It's such a great feeling knowing you have friends from all over world. There's really no feeling like it—and who knows where those connections will take you.

You'll Experience Things Others Never Will

Do you know what it's like living in Saudi Arabia? No, I mean, really. Do you? Even if you hear stories from people—do you believe them? Have they been there? Do you know what surprises await you? What adventure has in store for you? There is nothing that could have prepared me for my experiences in Saudi Arabia.

Your Bank Account Will Thank You

When I hear about people going to Thailand to teach English vs. Saudi Arabia, I'm left scratching my head in confusion. Okay, so you're willing to go to Thailand and teach for $1,000 a month, instead of teaching in Saudi and netting $2,500-3,000 cash savings a month because apart from all of the cash, all of your expenses will be paid including return airfares, free housing, utility bills paid, and more? Some of the salaries outside of Saudi are very low—even in the US. Saving cash is fast and easy as there are no bars, no alcohol, no crazy things to spend money on – this really keeps you in check. There are great jobs to be had, if teaching is your thing.

Conclusion

There are plenty more reasons you should move to Saudi Arabia—and this post isn't meant to be about the money – it's about the person you will become. You will vastly widen your horizons, make tons of new friends, find great opportunities in life, and be all the more financially-stable for it.
